

PID:PT2022_0197

Abstract:

Independent measurements of distances to pulsars are fundamental for the construction of the Galactic electron density model. Benefited from the high sensitivity of the FAST, we propose to measure the HI absorption line of 21 pulsars, so that their distances can be constrained.